Act to Create Five Nursery Schools Here

School Board Will Seek Federal Funds to Care For Children.

The Mansfield board of education took steps last night to set up supervised nurseries in the city where mothers who are employed in war industries may leave their children during the day.

With federal funds available for nursery schools in war production areas, the board voted to request financing of a maximum of five nursery groups in the city. If the funds are granted, supervisors would be provided by the board in rooms convenient to industrial plants. Cooks would be employed to prepare meals for the children and sleeping quarters would be available for babies.

The board last night also voted to take over the Americanization classes for foreign-born residents of the city and county who want to prepare for naturalization examinations.

Citizenship classes were sponsored by WPA until Feb. 1 when the classes were dropped with the closing of WPA projects.

Supt. W. L. Miller estimated that three teachers could handle about 60 persons in the citizenship courses, teaching reading, writing, and citizenship or government. Classes would last three hours and would be conducted at grade schools in the city. The WPA classes were held at the Newman, Bowman and Carpenter schools.

Applicants for citizenship would take 12-week courses at an enrollment fee of $2.50 per pupil. The teachers could be paid from that fee and there would be no cost to the board of education, Supt. Miller said.

The nursery school plan has been under study for several weeks, the superintendent told the board, and a few children have already been cared for at the Friendly House. A committee headed by Russell Gimbel, Friendly House director, would serve in an advisory capacity

WHY THE RUSH?

Ration Officials Try to Stem 'Runs' on Clothing Stores.

Rationing of wearing apparel is not in sight, Richland county ration officials were notified today, in a notice aimed to forestall rushes on dry goods stores as a result of erroneous rumors being circulated.

"Shoe rationing was not the first step toward apparel rationing," the announcement began, "and since there is no shortage of clothing, there is no need for rationing. The War Production board has not directed the OPA to undertake rationing or to set in motion any machinery toward that end."

Allaying worry of parents concerning the shoe situation of their children, the OPA announcement gave the information "if a child needs shoes after there are no more No. 17 stamps available in the family, his parents may apply to the board for a shoe certificate."

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— A young girl was killed and three companions, all members of a share-the-ride club, were injured today when the automobile in which they were riding to work at the Euclid plant of the Chase Brass company skidded into a freight train at a crossing.

Miss Jane Zanovicz, 19, was killed. The car in which they were riding skidded on an icy patch at a Nickle Plate crossing and struck the locomotive of a freight train.

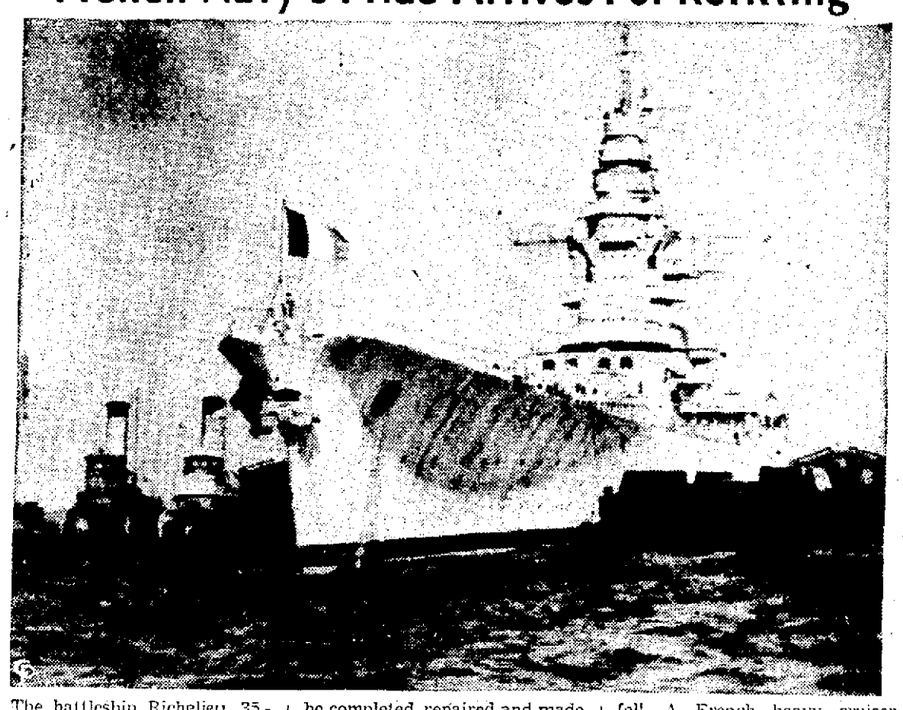
French Navy's Pride Arrives For Refitting



The battleship Richelieu, 35,000-ton pride of the French navy, is pictured above entering New York harbor where it will be completed, repaired and made ready for active duty with the Allied naval forces. The battleship escaped Dakar when France fell. A French heavy cruiser and two light cruisers also have been brought to the United States for repairs.

Mercury to Stay at Low Marks as Eastern States Suffer Under 37 Below Zero.

Richland county counted only property damage from fires and slipping accidents today as a result of the winter's coldest wave which left a death toll of 26 over the nation. Continued cold was forecast for tonight with snow flurries probable.

Only injury reported as an indirect result of the cold snap was that of Assistant Fire Captain Clarence Lurz, who suffered a sprained back yesterday when he fell while fighting a fire caused by an overheated stove.

Mansfield's weatherman reported a low of one above zero last night, with the coldest temperature in the district being that at Cleveland where the official reading was one below. Columbus, Toledo and Cincinnati temperatures ranged from three to six above.

Mansfield's high was at 11 above for the past 24-hour period while the mercury was nine above at noon today.

Considerable damage resulted from the fire at the home of James Bailey, 84 East Sixth street. An auto belonging to George Reichert was badly damaged and contents of a small concrete garage at 100 West Temple court burned yesterday afternoon. Central fire station crews were called in both cases.

Firemen Henry Hasenzahl and Clarence Hall were dispatched to the scene with the department's pulmotor and a few minutes later Fuller was sent with the inhalator recently acquired under an arrangement between the city and the Junior Association of Commerce.

SHORT SALE.

Whisky'll Be Sold Today— You Must Guess When.

Confronted by the rapid decrease of their limited stocks, managers of Mansfield's two state liquor stores today planned for a brief retail sale period some time during this afternoon or tonight in order to more equitably allocate available whiskies to the greatest number of persons.

Frank Poling, manager of the South Park street store, said that for several days one woman has headed the lineup at the noon opening hour each day and that many other "repeaters" have been noted. Secrecy of the hour of sale is resorted to defeat this practice, Poling said.

William Thull, manager of the North Main street store, said today that his stock, like that of the companion store, contains Scotch whisky, rum and brandy, cordials and gins but that the domestic whisky stock is very low. Both managers are hoping for additional supplies later this week.

Favors Using Home For Aged As Juvenile Detention Center

Juvenile Judge Stuart Cramer today appealed to Richland county commissioners to increase the courthouse space allotted to the juvenile court and make further provision for detention of youthful offenders.

His appeal was in line with the increased number of juvenile cases and the still further increase that may be expected from the history of war and post-war delinquency, he said.

Present location of the juvenile court does not provide any privacy for the conversation of juvenile officers with the children since one small room houses the two probation officers, the court stenographer and court records. Likewise the two nice rooms provided by the Salvation Army for detention headquarters are inadequate for the number of boys and girls who must be confined.

Cramer suggested that Richland county cooperate with other counties in the district in evacuating one of their county homes for use as a detention home. In this way, problem children from all the counties participating in the plan might be housed comfortably while aged residents could also be made comfortable in one of the other institutions of these counties.

Cramer emphasized that his recommendations to the commissioners did not constitute a remonstrance in any sense of the word, and if his suggestion were

Bricker qualified his possible signing of the time bill by saying that he would give the measure a thorough reading "to determine if it included all matters the legislature meant it to contain."

American Tanks Blaze Into Action Under Umbrella Of Planes As Nazis Admit Soviets Enter Suburbs Of Vital Kharkov

(By Associated Press)

American tanks, blazing into action under an umbrella of U. S. fighter planes, were reported today to have hurled the Germans back six miles in the Faid region of central Tunisia in the first big armored battle of North Africa.

The hard-hitting Americans, many of them untried in battle, scored their success against veteran armored troops of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

Other Nazi columns, however, had forced American and French troops to evacuate the key air base at Gafsa, 60 miles southwest of Faid pass.

The raging tank battle to the north where Rommel had achieved a 20-mile break through was regarded the more important, however, and if the Americans win the contest now in progress around Sidi Bouzid, 75 miles west of Sfax, the Axis southern arm at Gafsa will be in a dangerous position.

Cornered like a tiger, Rommel hurled his most experienced armored units against untried American forces Sunday in what may be Germany's last great offensive bid in Africa.

While the North African battle theater flamed anew, Adolf Hitler's high command acknoledged that Russian troops had entered the outer suburbs of Kharkov, the great German citadel 400 miles west of Stalingrad.

The Red armies also were reported to have slashed across the Rostov-Taganrog along the north shores of the Sea of Azov, at the base of the 70-mile-wide escape corridor where upwards of 200,000 German troops are retreating to the west.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters said small enemy forces rolled into Gafsa yesterday evening—thereby threatening to cut the 300-mile-long Allied front near the middle—and said heavy fighting between armored forces raged in the area west of Faid.

Gafsa lies 75 miles west of the Gulf of Gabes.

At the same time, Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's British Eighth army was officially reported to have captured Ben Gardane, 20 miles inside Tunisia, and sped on in pursuit of Marshal Erwin Rommel's legions.

On the Soviet front, the entry of Red army shock troops into the outer suburbs of Kharkov indicated that the whole Nazi defense system in southern Russia was buckling.

Kharkov figured as a prime bastion in the German winter line extending from Orel to Rostov. Its fall would remove the last major stronghold barring the path to the Dnieper river, in the heart of the Ukraine.

In North Africa, dispatches from Allied headquarters said Axis troops occupied Gafsa after a 28-mile advance from Sened.

An Italian communique declared 781 Allied prisoners were taken, 97 Allied tanks destroyed or captured, and "some enemy positions" seized in "action of local character."

Dispatches indicated that the PRESSURE: U. S. Subs Harass Jap Shipping In South Pacific

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Fifteen Japanese ships including 12 destroyers were sunk or damaged, and two American warships, including the heavy cruiser Chicago, were lost in a week of furious sea-air fighting in the Solomon islands area beginning Jan. 29, the navy announced today.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Navy Knox said today the navy is pressing its submarine campaign "very energetically" against Japanese shipping in the southwest Pacific area.

"We assume that they're doing the most they can to exploit that territory," he told a press conference. "Undoubtedly they are getting oil, for one thing.

"I have had unofficial reports that they have renewed oil production in the shallow wells in northern Borneo and we know, of course, that some installations in the East Indies were not destroyed."

The last navy report on American submarine sinkings of Japanese ships of all types came out about two weeks ago and showed that up to that time 123 enemy ships were sunk, 22 probably sunk and 32 damaged—a total of 177—by submarines.

The secretary was asked how the navy was getting along with its campaign of attrition against Japanese shipping, on which the whole usefulness of the conquered territories rest, and he replied that "we're pressing our submarine campaign very energetically."

He was told that in the last several days details had been coming out of the southwest Pacific about a series of sea-air actions

EDGE: Richelieu Gives Allies Advantage In Heavy Warships

(Editor's Note: Joseph Morton, Associated Press correspondent, was the only newspaperman aboard the French battleship Richelieu on her voyage to New York. What she will mean to the Allied navies is analyzed in the following article.)

By JOSEPH MORTON

NEW YORK —(AP)— The transAtlantic voyage of the French battleship Richelieu may have assured the Allies once again of a definite edge over the Axis in first-line fighting craft of 35,000 tons or more.

The great man o'war's captain Marcel Deramond, sitting with me in his room on the bridge, drew attention to this probability a few days ago as the battered vessel approached United States coastal waters on the last leg of her 3,700 mile trip from Dakar, French West Africa.

"In taking account of all the first-line battleships," he told me, "we know that the Allies, at the start of 1943, barely had enough to match those of their opponents. With the Richelieu, they unquestionably will have the advantage. She will become very important in future months.

(Captain Deramond considered only ships of 35,000 tons or more in making his comparison. He would not give the details on which he based his comparisons.)

The captain suggested the safe journey from Dakar, with a propeller missing and speed greatly reduced, might well be termed an Allied victory.

"Germany certainly is far from pleased," he chuckled, "to learn we have arrived in a harbor where

The state highway department warned of "slippery spots" in the Lima - Mansfield - Millersburg and St. Clairsville districts.

New England reported 11 dead as a result of the cold which caused thousands of cases of frostbite, vital war work delay, schools to close and transportation to be slowed. Eight were known to be dead as a result of the weather in New York, five in Pennsylvania and two in New Jersey. Most casualties resulted from exposure.

Suffering was reported in many eastern states due to the lack of adequate fuel oil. Temperatures in some of the states affected were as cold as 37 degrees below zero.

One of the coldest spots was Portland, Me., with a -37 reading. It was 36 below at Montpelier, Vt., 22 below at Hartford, 31 at Concord, N. H., and 27 at Manchester, N. H. Sub-zero readings were reported by Boston, Springfield, New Haven and other cities.

The mercury flirted with zero throughout the night in New York but upstate cities were much colder. It was below zero in Pennsylvania mountain regions but slightly warmer in urban areas.

Twice tested in battle before commissioning, the Richelieu has surprised naval experts with her strength and soundness, Captain Deramond said, observing that when reconditioned she would be one of the most powerful warships afloat — probably among the world's first ten.

The trip from Dakar was planned without particular apprehension.

French Sailors Get Rousing Welcome

NEW YORK—(AP)—The navy's in—the French navy—and New Yorkers are discovering there's something gallant about a Gallic gob.

They tumbled off the French battleship Richelieu which arrived in New York yesterday and were greeted by girls, men, bartenders and restaurateurs who never realized they were French until the French navy arrived.

The Gallic visitors are young and merry Frenchmen — some youths who joined up in 1941 after the so-called "fall of France" and proudly refer to themselves as the "Quarante-Et-Un" and some older men who have been in the navy five years or longer.

Friends appeared from everywhere to welcome them. Typical of the group was Miss Madeline Parker of the Bronx who took the day off from work to entertain the sailors because, she said, her mother was French and she herself arrived here in 1941 after six months of life under German occupation.

When nine sailors entered a Greenwich village bar everyone, including a group of United States sailors, rose and spontaneously applauded. They joined the French sailors in singing the Marseillaise.

GALION—Launched last night at Senior high school was a recreational program sponsored by the Galion Civilian Defense council, for the purpose of providing recreation for soldiers, war industry workers, their families, farm workers and their families, and youths, both in and out of school.

James Lymper, Galion high school coach, has been named in charge of the Citizens Service Corps to have charge of the program activities. The project is being sponsored by the federal government in each community, and is under the general supervision of the Civilian Defense council locally.

Part of the program has been in operation here for several months, but the local committee was organized during ths past week and planned a weekly program.

BRICKER PLANS TO SIGN TIME SHIFT MEASURE

Says He'll Act After Study While Opposition Grows Throughout State.

for fast time and eight for slow time. Previous totals were five for fast time and 15 for slow time.

Shelby's council last night voted to retain eastern war time regardless of what action Bricker might take. Shelby residents were almost unanimous in their opposition to any change and Mayor W. R. Morris said conferences with Mansfield officials indicated no change is contemplated by municipal action here.

Mayor W. J. Locke could not be reached today but there has been no indication of a special council session to act on the time change. Locke has expressed a disapproval of any change at this time, favoring a change in the fall season.

Ashland's council has voted to remain on "fast" time along with Massillon and Dover. Mt. Vernon, Steubenville, East Liverpool, Youngstown, Akron, Canton, Cleveland and other larger centers of population and war industry.

At Attica yesterday Joseph W. Fichter, master of the Ohio Grange, urged cities to "express an attitude of cooperation with the farmers" by adopting the time change. At Springfield ministers and school officials urge a change to slow time but are opposed by merchants and members of council.

In Conneaut a poll showed that 398 favored keeping war time while only 66 voted for the change. In Mahoning county small communities voted to abide Youngstown's decision to retain war time.

Use of two times in Ohio, observers say, will create much transportation confusion but bus lines generally will operate on the present eastern war time. The changeover would make ineffective the present system of staggering working shifts in war industries, many point out.

Should Bricker sign the time bill clocks will be set back to 2 a. m. when the hands say 3 a. m. next Sunday morning.

Recognizing the growing revolt against the change members of the state legislature which passed the measure have set in motion a plan to memorialize congress to place Ohio in the central time zone which would end confusion and synchronize all clocks on the new slow time — the cities will go along with it.

Railroads, federal courts and other government offices and all interstate commerce will remain on fast time even if Bricker signs the bill.

In an "advisory referendum" yesterday Detroiters voted 5 to 2 in favor of eastern war time over the slow time, although the state legislature has returned Michigan to central war time.

From a Lexington woman today came a letter asking whether or not "state or municipal governments can vote to change an act of congress established as a war emergency measure. This writer recites confusion which reigned in a neighboring state as a result of time variations some years ago.

"I certainly favor returning Ohio to old eastern standard time" a Mansfielder writes, adding "there never was any sense or excuse to change it an hour faster. Our president can change Thanksgiving day but he can't change the sun."

"Most families will want to plant a garden," writes a Ruth avenue woman who favors keeping war time to afford more daylight hours with victory vegetables after the day's shop work is done. A Williams avenue couple voted to keep the present time for the duration as a "follow the nation" policy.

"I favor the present war time as it will give shop and office workers more time to work in their victory gardens," a woman resident of a rural route says.

"I can use the extra hour in the evening in my victory garden, so keep the present eastern war time until Nov. 30" a Home road war worker says.

"The dark of winter mornings is nearly over now, so why not compromise and change to slow time next November" a prominent Mansfield woman urged.

"If we are to do a good job in victory gardens to supplement the nation's urgently needed food supply we'll need the extra evening daylight, so let's stress the importance of keeping the present time" an Andover road resident says.

ed. The resuscitators said the youth was extremely groggy and was lying on the floor of the shop when they arrived. Artificial respiration methods and oxygen were employed to revive him.

Wolf was overcome, the rescuers said, by fumes coming from an open gas heater which lacked a flue. No ventilators have been installed in the quarters recently occupied by the tire shop.

Firemen, Fuller and other members of the police department and civilian defense enrollees were schooled in the use of the inhalator when it arrived here a few months ago. A factory representative devoted two days to instruction schools.

parts available, and reduced manpower.

But the blow-off probably will come when he defends the administration's farm subsidy program against farm bloc demands for higher prices. Smith already has expressed his disdain for the so-called incentive payment plan in these words:

The only incentive farmers need is a reasonable price in the market for their products. Who are we to be bought? Incentive? Incentive, hell!"

The farm controversy was focused on that issue late yesterday when a house appropriations subcommittee threw out, by a 6 to 1 vote, President Roosevelt's request for $100,000,000 to finance incentive payments.

Wickard took up the challenge immediately. He said in a formal statement that he would not accept, and asked farmers not to accept, the house subcommittee's action as final.

"We are not going to reduce the goals which were increased at the time the incentive payment program was announced," he said.

He said he would depend upon the patriotism of farmers to meet the goals "regardless of the uncertainties now prevailing . . . therefore, I appeal to the farmers not to change their plans."

The incentive payment plan was announced last month after Wickard had asked farmers for a seven per cent increase in total farm production for 1943 over the record 1942 output.

earlier this month about which the navy had declined, for security reasons, to supply here.

"I think we will have a communique today," Knox said. "That will clear that whole thing up and give you the whole story."

The secretary reiterated his view that the conquest of Guadalcanal has given United States Pacific forces an advantageous position from which to direct new blows against the enemy.

Knox had no definite information for the reasons behind the higher losses suffered by American fliers in the Solomons in the last two or three days.

But he said by way of surmise that the Japanese may have some new models in use now and they posibly have some better trained pilots. "I think we're somewhat spoiled," the secretary remarked, "by knocking down five of theirs to one of ours. That's an abnormal rate."

Yanks Soften Munda For Knock-Out Blow

WASHINGTON — (INS) — American airmen in the South Pacific today are "softening up" the Japanese airfield and base at Munda apparently in preparation for a knockout blow against this point in the central Solomons.

At least 65 bombing raids have been conducted by U. S. planes against Munda since the last week in November, and recently they have faced little opposition from enemy aircraft or anti-aircraft fire.

Reports from the battle area, however, disclosed that the Japs have strengthened greatly their aerial and ground defense in the Shortland island area of the northern Solomons.

Whereas previously American bombers and fighter planes encountered little opposition in raids in the Shortland zone, on Feb. 13-14 a total of at least 75 Jap Zeros rose to intercept the assaults.

According to navy men, this may mean the Japs have decided against pouring in more men and supplies into the Munda area and to concentrate on bolstering their bases in Shortland. Munda is 180 miles from Guadalcanal and Shortland about 295.

Blast Japs From Burma to South Seas

(By Associated Press)

In the far Pacific, American and Allied warplanes were officially credited today with dealing heavy new blows to the Japanese from Burma to the South Seas.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported that U. S. flying fortresses, winging hundreds of miles through a series of thunderstorms and heavy clouds, unloaded 58 tons of bombs on the big Japanese base at Rabaul, New Britain, attacking the enemy stronghold for the second time in a row.

All the planes returned without any serious damage to personnel.

Other aircraft were reported in action over a wide expanse of the Southwest Pacific.

In Burma, RAF bombers pounded the Japanese in day and night attacks, blasting the enemy airfield at Heho and the major base on Akyab island, as well as other targets inland.

BRIDE-ELECT HONORED AT SHOWER BY AUNTS

Miss Lillian J. Wentz Entertained In the Home of Mrs. H. L. Lindegger: Receives Gifts In Treasure Hunt.

AMONG the many parties planned in honor of Miss Lillian J. Wentz, was one given Monday night, by three of the bride-elect's aunts, Mrs. Fred Diskosky, Mrs. H. L. Lindegger and Miss Opal Lindegger, at the home of Mrs. H. L. Lindegger, 242 Bowland road.

Miscellaneous gifts were presented to the bride-elect in a treasure hunt. When cards were played, prizes were awarded guests in the form of kitchen utensils, which, when presented to the honoree, were found to contain small capsules, concealing instructions for finding the gifts.

The hostesses presented Miss Wentz with a gift of crystal in the candle wick pattern.

When luncheon was served late in the evening, a skillful arrangement of airplanes and anti-aircraft guns was used as the centerpiece. Suspended from the chandelier over the table was a large silver airplane in which were seated a bride and groom. Tiny silver airplanes were used as favors. The ice cream served was stenciled with figures of a bride and groom.

Another in the series of parties planned for Miss Wentz, who is the bride-elect of Air Cadet Joseph P. Lesch, will be given tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. Marion Day, Bartley avenue. That affair will be another miscellaneous shower.

BETA CHAPTER MEETS.

The Beta chapter of Mansfield Sorosis will meet Wednesday, Feb. 17 at 7:30 p. m. with Mrs. Virt Simpson, 497 Westview boulevard. The guest speaker will be Adj. Paul Hoffman, from the Salvation army.

Sorority Member Honored With Tea

Members of the Sigma Kappa Gamma sorority entertained with a tea Sunday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Ralph Hazlett, the former Miss Helen Lanzen. Mr. and Mrs. Hazlett were married in January and are now making their home in Cleveland.

The tea was held in the home of Miss Doris Kiraly, 63 Linden road. The afternoon was spent socially. A lovely gift of crystal was presented to the honoree by her sorority sisters.

Mrs. Hazlett poured when tea was served from a long table decorated in a color scheme of red and white. An attractive floral arrangement was the centerpiece.

An out-of-town guest present for the affair was Miss Eileen Minard who was formerly of Mansfield and president of the sorority. Miss Minard has been living in Cleveland since the first of the year.

Arrangements for the tea were in charge of Miss Kiraly, chairman, Miss Florence Blanz and Miss Janet Wilson.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Couldn't you tell it for me?" Halloran asked, perturbed at having to tell his bizarre tale again for the bank manager, but my father was adamant.

"Your account is first hand," he said, and therefore much better. Please tell us of the man who employed you and what he had you do, then of your discovery when you removed the wig and beard from Mr. Minot."

Once Halloran got into the swing of his story, he made it vivid and dramatic .Georges and my father were absorbed in watching the reactions of Gardner, the bank official, but I found greater interest in watching Georges, and speculating what effect his rehabilitated appearance would have on Mary and Olina.

Georges seemed really a king out of a fairy book, tall, lithe, handsome, debonair, his dark eyes reflecting his joy at being released from his disguise, and from the fears which long had haunted him.

Halloran had done a wonderful job. The raw lines on Georges' face had been concealed by the bandages, and his hair had been trimmed and treated so that it looked as I remembered it when Georges first came to America, at Queen Olga's bidding, in search of her runaway daughter.

There was no question as to the effect upon Olina, already in love with him, but I wondered uneasily whether there would be any secret revival of Mary's former romantic interest in this handsome and regal man.

Noel was the better man of the two, I was sure. There was a touch of ruthlessness in Georges' nature which was entirely absent from Noel's, and while I guessed Georges would be the more ardent and picturesque wooer, Noel surrounded his wife with the never-failing tenderness, consideration and understanding which make a heaven of marriage.

If it were not for Noel's jealousy, and the rages which it engendered, I should have had no qualms about the re-appearance of Georges, but I was glad of Mary's promise to appear as colorless as possible at the coming after-theater supper party in Georges honor at the Veritzen apartment; also to know that thereafter Georges would be held incommunicado at the hideaway for some time to come.

An exclamation from Mr. Gardner brought me back to reality, as Halloran completed his story.

"But good heavens, Mr. Minot," Garnder said, "do you realize that with that set-up he could draw out all your funds? Of course," reflectively, "he wouldn't be making such elaborate plans unless he knew the amount and the details of your account, also that two of us at the bank know your identity."

"That's what we figured," my father said "Do you realize," he added slowly, "just what that implies?"

Gardner's face reflected first bewilderment then realization.

"It implies," he said, "that there is a traitor inside the bank."

"That is the only answer," my father said.

"But that is unthinkable," Gardner exclaimed. "Our men have all grown up with us. I would not know where to begin to look."

"We have experts who can pose as examiners and prosecute that search to a successful conclusion," my father told him.

"We shall be glad of your help," Gardner said. "And I suppose you are having this impostor arrested?"

"On the contrary," my father said quietly, "we wish you to receive him as if he were, in truth, Georges Minot, formerly king of Trees."

At present, when each member of the club is planning her victory garden, she will also continue the study of birds, soil, grain and creatures of the woods.

Church Guild Hears Talk By Missionary

An interesting informal discussion period followed Mrs. Charles Matti's talk at the meeting of the Central Methodist Episcopal guild Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Stanley Harper, 189 Cline avenue. Twenty-four members were present.

The speaker told her audience that "birds' nests" are made from sea weeds which are washed thoroughly, and according to her are "very good." "Chinese chow mein is better," she said, "because the Chinese spend more time preparing their food than we do in America."

"Many prominent, educated people in China hold Bible classes in their homes. Surgeon General Mei May, who has charge of more than 80 hospitals, had 50 people at one of these meetings," she told the group. She described attendants at these meetings as very well educated people who carry Bibles written in English.

"Missionaries have more or less settled in eastern China, but now have scattered into west China due to Japanese occupation, which will give western China its opportunity for schools and Christian teachings," she said.

Mrs. Matti went to China in 1925 and lived there during the wars of 1927, 1937 and 1942, and was interned by the Japanese for six months. She and Dr. Matti came to the United States aboard the Gripsholm when ordered to leave China, and arrived in New York City Aug. 25, last year.

Mrs. Ray Paulson, president, presented Mrs. L. Hardley, a new member, and also introduced two guests, Mrs. E. G. Davis and Mrs. E. C. Jenkins. The group agreed to participate in the Victory Book campaign following an appeal by Mrs. Grant Ward. Mrs. Ray Jenkins was appointed chairman of the drive.

Mrs. Jenkins, who is a sister of Mrs. Matti, presided at the refreshment table at the close of the evening. Appointments were in keeping with the Valentine season. Associate hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. LeRoy Strain, Mrs. M. B. Pecht, Mrs. Ray Paulson, and Miss Evangeline White.

The next meeting of the guild will be at the home of Mrs. H. H. Clingan, 208 Vennum avenue.

At that meeting, a large class of candidates will be initiated. Initiatory work will be in tableau. The formal initiation will be open to the public.

Poem Portrayed By Members Of Chapter, O. E. S.

An unusual and interesting form of entertainment was presented last evening to members of the Ruth chapter, Order of Eastern Star, when they met in the Masonic Temple for their regular meeting over which Mrs. Miriam Hoffman, worthy matron, presided.

A dramatization of the poem, "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," was given by various members of the chapter. J. Willis James read the poem, while Miss Mary Anglin played selections at the piano to represent characters in the poem, who were portrayed by members stepping out of a heart shaped altum, to enact their parts.

Members, and characters portrayed were Miss Thelma Hursh, sunbonnet girl; Mrs. Denny Skelton, a girl in school days; Mrs. Albert Hachten, as a graduating student; Mrs. Raymond Friday, a business girl; Mrs. Dale Bryan, a bride; Mrs. Floyd Adams, a mother with a child; and Mrs. R. J. Willis as the wife and sweetheart.

Tiny Tommy Anglin represented Cupid, and presented members with valentines.

Preceding the entertainment, a short business session was held. The next meeting will be held March 1, at the Temple. At that time there will be initiation of candidates.

Plans Welfare Work At De Molay Meeting

Mrs. S. J. Kiehl, 41 Douglas avenue, entertained members of the DeMolay Mothers club, when various plans were made for welfare work for members of the DeMolay, who are in the service.

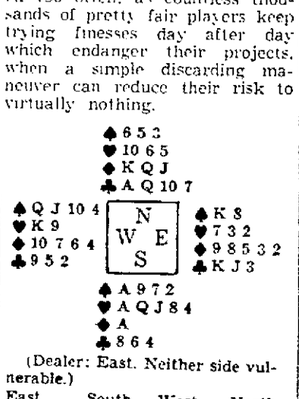
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKE IT AIR-TIGHT

As between a shot for extra tricks, which loses your contract if it fails, and a sure-thing play for the contract which gives up all chance for the extras, there is no argument when you are engaged in rubber bridge. Go for the play which makes your contract air-tight, or as nearly as you can render it. That cannot be repeated too often, as countless thousands of pretty fair players keep trying finesses day after day which endanger their projects, when a simple discarding maneuver can reduce their risk to virtually nothing.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	4 ♥

West led his spade Q to the K and A, and South figured out how to make a maximum score and take perhaps all of the tricks. If the double finesse in clubs would work, and the suit would divide evenly, he could discard one of his own spades on the thirteener—or so he said at the end of the deal. He could park his two other spades on the dummy's diamonds. Then all he would have to do to keep the defenders from any trick at all would be to win the trump finesse, and so shut out the heart K.

With all that ambition, he embarked upon his plan by finessing the club 10 to the second trick. But just see what happened. East won that with the J and returned the spade 8, the 10 and J making the third trick for the defenders, and the 4 coming back to be ruffed by dummy's heart 10. Later the heart K took the setting trick.

What a cinch that contract really was, if South had attended to serious business instead of getting adventurous. After winning the spade lead, he could have cashed the diamond A, led to the club A and on the diamond K and Q could have parked his own other two clubs. Then he would not have cared if the defenders won two spades and the heart K, as his contract would have been in the bag.

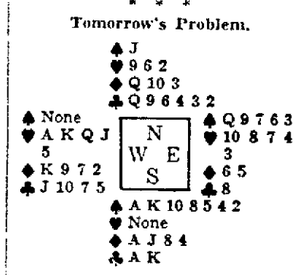
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the largest number of tricks South can take on this deal, playing at spades, against perfect play by the defenders?

Book Reviewed By Miss Mowry At Club Meeting

Twenty-one members of the Monday Study club heard Miss Roselyn Mowry review the popular book, "Head-Hunting In the Solomons," by Carolyn Mytinger, at their regular meeting Monday evening in the home of Mrs. R. A. Rowlands, Edgewood road. Mrs. Howard Wenning was the associate hostess.

The author, who is both a painter and writer, was accompanied on the expedition to the Solomons by her friend, Margaret Warren, and the experiences in tracking down models to be painted during the two years they were on the trip were described in interesting detail by the speaker.

"The fact that the Solomons and surrounding territory now comprises one of the major theaters of the war adds to the importance of the book," Miss Mowry told the group. "Head-Hunting in the Solomons" gives an insight into the customs and traditions of these strange peoples and the author's own sketches add to its value as a travel book, the speaker said.

During the short business session the club members voted to participate in the Victory books campaign, and also voted a contribution to the Red Cross War fund.

Late in the evening the hostesses served a luncheon.

The next meeting, March 1, will be at the home of Mrs. William Weldon, Davis road, at which time Miss Jean Harrington, of Columbus, director of the Women's department of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, will speak on "The War Strikes Home." Miss Mowry will assist Mrs. Weldon in entertaining the club.

Lamplighters Council Has Combined Meeting

A combined social and business meeting was held last evening at the home of Mrs. Clyde Adams, 170 Marion avenue, for the Lamplighters council of the sightless.

Members held a discussion of employment for the blind. A Valentine exchange was held. Refreshments were served late in the evening by the hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carson. Hedges street, will entertain at the next meeting, scheduled for March 13.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, February 17.

An intriguing and peculiar state of affairs is forecast from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. While seemingly things may appear to move in accepted and routine channels, yet there is an undercurrent which seems to instigate the behavior and point the aspirations. There may be surprising gains although a tendency to prodigality may dissipate these.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which there are subtle and intriguing undercurrents, actuating the conduct and framing the decisions, these under guidance of intuition, illumination or ordinary "hunches." Be wise and vigilant in transactions with large corporations or other bodies, where intrigue or strategy abound.

A child born on this day may be gifted with unusual creative talents, sustained by subtle, psychic or intuitive inspiration and direction. It may gain much, but also suffer from imposition or duplicity in various connections.

CHAPTER XXX

Hobey made a demuring sound his throat, and would have oken; but she wouldn't let him. lo, don't darling," she said. "I ow what you're going to try to y. The trouble with you is, you e, that you don't really know and you never have. The ner side of me—the side you've ver let yourself admit exists—spoiled and selfish and willful d a lot of other bad adjectives. at was the side that attracted iley most, I think, in the beming — and for a lot of reans," she interpolated thoughtlly. "It matched a side of him, one thing . . . But sometimes e very things you fall in love th people for, become the ngs you like best about them, the end."

The narrative continued, and bey knew that for the moment salie had forgotten him once re. This recapitulation was for rself, and this analysis that she s making was of her own unrstanding; and he didn't try to errupt again. He simply held r hand, and felt it gradually w warm under his fingers. It d been icecold at the beginning. Rosalie said, "And then I tried change. I don't know when started, exactly, or what parular thing brought it about—t a couple of years ago I began get fed up with the way we re living, and my point of view out the whole thing began to different, I suppose you could I was trying to grow up. yway I knew that I was sick to ith of the jazz-age things, and raw liquor, and the hangovers the morning, and the kissing ier people's husbands behind swinging door in the kitchen-e . . . The whole damn sequence," Rosalie said bitterly. And she said: "Isn't it funny how we all scorned all the good old-fashioned precepts—we were going to be modern and free, if it killed us—and then finally, after we'd all tried everything else, we found ourselves coming back to them again, because there it was after all—they were best. Well, that's what happened to me. But the trouble was, it never did happen to Bailey. He liked things the way they were.

"So there's been lots of trouble," her weary voice went on. "We've nearly broken up half a dozen times in the past year or two—but we kept together somehow, and made it up, each time; and struggled along. The quarrel we had before I took that trip to Europe a year ago was the worst—that was really a separation, something like this one, except that I repented on the trip and kept cabling Bailey. I had a lot of time abroad to think things over, and I thought, This was a good marriage once, and we were happy. It's worth saving. So I came back prepared to try again—just one last time—and Bailey wanted to, too, and that's why we decided to have the baby."

She stopped and thought about that, and a kind of sad wonder came into her eyes and into her voice, and she said, "What made me think that that would be a solution? Why didn't I realize that if it didn't work, it was a dreadful thing to do—I mean, so unfair to Peter himself And now here he is, with his parents breaking up for good." She shook her head incredulously; and Hobey saw that she was very near tears. "Oh, Lord," she said, "sometimes I think I've made the most terrible mess of things. Look at my life. Poor Phil . . . And everything that's happened since. And all of it leading to this—and now it's finished."

"You're sure about that, are you," Hobey said. He managed to keep the eagerness out of his voice, and to make it sound as though he were merely trying to help her test the strength of her decision.

"I'm very sure," Rosalie answered quickly. "I've never been surer of anything. I only wish now that I'd done this long ago, since it had to happen sometime. I mean—it makes you hate yourself to have tried to hold a man and failed at it. As if," said Rosalie with sudden passion, "I wanted any man who doesn't want me!"

"I'm glad you feel that way," Hobey said gravely and slowly, "if you do. I'm glad both for your sake and for mine. I think it's high time you left Bailey, and I think you'll be much happier for it. I've thought so a long time but naturally it wasn't my place to say anything about it. As far as I'm concerned, you know how I feel about you. I love you more than anything in the world—I always have, I always will. I only wish I thought that helped a little now."

"Darling," Rosalie said. "Of course it helps a great deal."

She kissed him on the cheek for that—though only on the cheek. She said, "I couldn't bear this without you."

The separation was exactly six weeks long. From the beginning to the end of it, Hobey had a feeling that this wouldn't last; it was too good to last, or to be true; he was too happy. Only Rosalie's cold conviction convinced him. She would not even consent to see Bailey, though Bailey kept trying to see her. She said, "What's the use? We've already said all we have to say to each other about it. We'd only keep on quarreling, and get nowhere."

She remained in the apartment—Bailey was living at a midtown club—and she replaced Toy with two female servants, in addition to Peter's nurse. All her new arrangements had a permanence about them, expressive of her own belief that this was how her life would be. "At least till after the divorce," she said. She kept saying this like that, alluding matter-of-factly to the ultimate legal action. Hobey thought she kept mentioning it merely to accustom herself to the whole idea; because certainly, so far, she had done nothing about it.

There were other signs, as well, that belied the finality of her decision; and Hobey was acutely conscious of them. There was a kind of false and febrile gaiety about her, that other people might and did believe in, but that he could not. She laughed too much, and she stayed out too late, and never wanted to go home. She bought quantities of new clothes, of a rather more extreme type than was usual with her; and she gave more and costlier parties than she and Bailey had been wont to give. It was only on the rare occasions when she and Hobey dined together alone at some quiet speakeasy that she let down at all and was herself, and even then her gaiety and the light words were kept at hand in case she needed them.

They weren't often alone together in public nowadays; Hobey was being careful about that. "I don't want you to get talked about," he said to Rosalie. It went without saying that it was far more likely to happen now than ever before. Even their lunches nowadays were foursomes if he had his way. This amused Rosalie, whose reckless attitude was the reverse of his. She said, "Darling, imagine you being mid-Victorian!"

They were invited everywhere together. People said to Rosalie, "Bring Hobey with you," and friends of his own said to him, "Would Mrs. Harker come too, do you think? I'd love to have her. She's so attractive." . . . It was one of those things; they were two people who were now a couple, and everybody took their attachment for granted. Hobey supposed that most people assumed it was a love affair, or that at least it was one of these semi-engagement situations that arose when divorces were imminent; and sometimes he thought drily, I wish to God I knew what it was myself.

Because he didn't know. All through the early part of that period, he wanted desperately some firm ground to stand on—some real promise on Rosalie's part, some definite commitment. Rosalie was understanding about that, but she kept saying that he mustn't hurry her; that it took a little time to readjust her mind and heart to this new scheme of things; and that she did love him, but she wasn't sure how much. "I'm used to waiting, I admit," Hobey said wryly, "but after some twenty years of it one gets a little tired. The whole question here is simply, are you ever going to marry me, or are you not?"

"If I marry anybody," Rosalie said; and kissed him lightly. "You know very well I wouldn't marry anybody else but you."

"Or Bailey again," Hobey said suspiciously. "Sometimes I think you're still in love with him."

"You're mad," she said. All her denials were like that, firm and cold and even angry; and always very gratifying to him.

Sometimes their discussions of the subject were in this vein, but at other times Rosalie was flippant in a way he couldn't bear. "Damn it," he said to her one day, "stop being so light about everything! Stop being so brittle—when you're not."

There was a surprised pause, during which she looked at him. "You sounded just like Bailey then," she told him thoughtfully at the end.

"And you liked that, I suppose!"

"On the contrary," she said, "I didn't like it at all. I much prefer the way you are yourself."

"That never gets me anywhere," Hobey said, "and it never has. So to hell with it." And so saying he stood up suddenly and strode across to Rosalie's chair and seized her by the hands and pulled her to her feet. "Come here," he said. "I'm sick of this. I love you and I want you."

"No, darling - "

"Yes."

He began to kiss her. All their previous kisses had been brief and casual; Rosalie had seen to that. This time he had his own way about it—fierce and triumphant. Her mouth was just as soft as he had always dreamed it would be. It yielded to his, although her hands against his chest at first did not relax their pressure. And then at last they did, and she slid them under his coat and around until they pressed the silk back of his waistcoat. . . . When the kiss was over, the first thing she said was, "Oh," in a sighing voice; and then a minute later, while they still clung together, she said, "This seems right, doesn't it? This has been going to happen always. . . ."

BULLETIN CLEARS QUESTIONS ON MAIL FOR ARMED SERVICES

Mansfielders puzzled over why it takes longer for mail to reach the armed forces overseas than it does for mail to be returned to the United States had their questions answered today in an official bulletin from the postmaster general's office.

Issued because of the "wide misunderstanding of how the mail is handled and of the difficulties encountered in its delivery," the bulletin explained that in the first place, transportation of mail must sometimes be postponed to first fill the more urgent need for arms, food, military or naval personnel.

Although mails are dispatched at every opportunity, the bulletin points out at times the overburdened facilities cannot accommodate all the mail and it must be held until shipping space is available.

In the interest of safety, ships must travel in convoys and a convoy can start only when the last ship is loaded. Furthermore it can move only as fast as the slowest ship in the convoy can travel.

"Ship sinkings by the enemy account for much of the lost mail," according to the bulletin. "Many thousands of letters and packages have been on ships lost by enemy action."

Mail service from oversea bases to the United States is more rapid and regular than from this country overseas, the bulletin explained, because less mail comes from overseas than goes to the armed forces. Ships and planes have more space available on return trips and the location of addresses in this country is more stable than that of overseas personnel.

V-mail letters are given priority in transportation by the army and navy over ordinary mail, and, when possible, they are sent by plane.

To further clarify the situation, the bulletin indicated that mail for members of the armed forces is delivered by the postal service to army and navy authorities at postoffices convenient to camps or stations in this country or to ports of embarkation when addressed to persons overseas.

The Postal service, then, according to the bulletin, has no further jurisdiction over the mail, and responsibility for its delivery from that point lies entirely with the army and navy. Likewise, the army and navy handle mail from members of the armed forces until it is delivered to civilian postoffices in this country and the postal service has no jurisdiction over the mail until so received.

SCIENCE DISCOVERS VITAMIN B_1 NECESSARY TO HELP TRANSFORM BREAD INTO ENERGY

Photomicrograph Of Vitamin B_1 Magnified 1000 Times. In One Year An Adult Needs 145,850 To 522,640 Units Of Vitamin B_1.

Yet Of The Millions Who Rely Upon Bread For Up To 35% Of Their Daily Energy—3 Out Of 4 Fail To Get A Good Diet, U. S. Officials Say. Thus, Can Fail To Get Enough Vitamin B_1

New Wonder Bread Thrills Thousands Everywhere Because: (1) Contains Vitamin B_1 (2) Slo-Baked For Lasting Freshness (3) Tastes Better (4) Proves Easier-To-Slice

WHAT everybody knows is that millions of people rely upon bread for up to 35% of their daily energy.

But what you may not know is that you must have Vitamin B_1 to help transform the bread you eat into the energy you need.

Science today proves conclusively that it takes Vitamin B_1 to unlock bread's hidden energy.

Now—according to U. S. Government Health Officials, 3 out of 4 people fail to get a good diet; thus can fail to get enough Vitamin B_1 naturally.

This does not mean that you lack Vitamin B_1 so badly the bread you eat does you no good. But it does mean that your body cannot properly transform bread into the energy you must have these days unless you get sufficient Vitamin B_1.

A New Kind Of Bread

Now, wise Mother Nature put Vitamin B_1 into wheat. But—in making bread whiter—man took it out.

Then Theodore Earle patented a way to retain more natural vitamins and minerals in flour.

And mass production by American industry made possible further additions of the Vitamin B_1 needed in the bread. A bread now better for flavor and better for health than before.

It's Doubly Fresh

Then, too, this new Wonder Bread is doubly fresh—fresh when you buy it; fresh when you eat it.

Because it is slo-baked for lasting freshness—baked 13% longer than many ordinary kinds.

See how much longer it stays fresh on the table and in the lunch box.

In addition, Wonder's slo-baking method gives you bread with a richer flavor now.

And—a firmer, tenderer texture. You'll find it easy to slice—and it leaves no crumbs.

Get new Wonder Bread at your grocer's today. You'll be glad you did!

Only Wonder Bread is made this way from Earle Patented Process Flour—U. S. Pat. Nos. 2143306, 2232697, 2155219, 2232696.

Small world, isn't it?

A year ago at this time, husky George Murray, former Mansfield Tyger football star, was busy with his studies in the classrooms at Wooster college.

During the fall, George had caught the eye of Wooster coaches by his fine play in the Scot freshman line, and they regarded him as a sure bet for a first string job on the Wooster eleven for the 1942 campaign.

But that wasn't for George.

I was talking to Murray one sunny afternoon last summer out at Liberty pool. And asking him, of course, about the football prospects at Wooster for the coming autumn.

"I've been getting letters from some of the foolball players, and they all seem to be getting in service one way or another," George told me. "So I'm enlisting. I'm not old enough for the draft, but I don't feel right, sticking around home with the rest of them going."

A few days later George joined the navy.

And where do you suppose George Murray is now? Why, he's busy with his studies in the classrooms at Wooster college as a NAVAL AIR CADET.

The boss was busy answering telephones Saturday night as anxious Mansfield fans called in asking the score of the Tyger tilt at Zanesville.

After a few such calls he didn't bother to ask what was wanted. Just picked up the phone and announced: "Mansfield, 45 to 43."

Then people started calling back, asking: "How many points did Hahn get?"

After half a dozen such calls, the boss inquired: "How come they all want to know how many points Hahn got?"

"Hahn is left handed," I informed him.

"Well, that's different," responded the boss. And after that, as announcement at each ring of the telephone, was:

"Mansfield, 45 to 43. Hahn got 17 points." (The boss is left handed.)

When lanky Jack Hammett tipped 28 points through the hoop for Union at Shiloh Saturday night, he jumped all the way from eighth place tie to first place in the Richland county league scoring lists. And his jump carried him not only into first place, but far out in front of the pack with 80 points compared to 67 for Bill Reed of Plymouth, the pace setter for several weeks.

Hammett won the county tournament for Union last year with his hooping antics, but he wasn't setting the world on fire early this season. Midway in the campaign he started to hit, starting with a rock of buckets in a non-league set with Ontario.

"I don't see why he doesn't get up to 20 points every game," both Ontario Coach Orville Kibler at the time.

And my Number One Operative Whizzer White came to this conclusion:

"I believe Hammett gets lonely when he gets in a game. He has so much more room space to himself than he's used to."

And the Whizzer explained: During practice, the Unions put three men on Hammett, and make him work for his points But he gets 'em."

Bowl Fouled by Fairway Drive

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — (AP) — This is the true story of a fowl (a pun implied) shot that proved fair:

Dr. M. M. Cullom, in a golf course, drove a ball from a tee toward a distant green. The peroid did a dive into a creek—

And hit the back of a large water fowl lazing there, bounced back onto land and rolled to the edge of the green.

The golfer got a par three and the fowl was fouled!

ILLIS OFFICIAL WASN'T KIDDIN' A BIT—SIR

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex.—(AP)—Recently, a rather close game in which several officers were playing, was referred by an enlisted man.

A shrill blast of the whistle stopped the tilt while the official fined a particularly obvious foul against a player.

"One more trick like that," stopped the referee, "and I'll throw you out of the game."

Then, in the stillness that followed, he was heard to add meekly, "Sir," when he recognized the player at fault was a commissioned officer.

77-Point Spree Sets Week Pace

Ohio High School Kid Burns Up Cage Nets.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP)— Practically everything that can occur on a basketball court was written into Ohio's record books today as the result of last week's torrid and terrific high school campaign.

Among the most interesting features of the week's set were:

The individual scoring ranged from 77 in a single game to minus two (Dick Hamsher of Walnut Creek scored the 77 in the 153 to 39 win over Glenmont, while Leland (Perk) O'Brien, Marietta's lanky center, contributed the minus two to his team by tossing a fielder for Cambridge.)

A string of victories and a string of defeats were ended at the same time on the same floor. (Buckskin of Ross county, boasting seven straight wins, and Circleville, bowed by eight straight defeats, met Friday and the "Roundtown" team won 34-33.)

Two teams needed seven periods to reach a decision, while two others left the floor 45 seconds before the game ended. (Lafferty and Bellaire St. Johns needed three overtime sessions before the parochial quintet won by 51-49, while Portsmouth's Central Catholic and East High teams left the floor too soon when the timer's horn sounded prematurely. They came back, and Central Catholic won 28-26, avenging its lone loss to an Ohio squad.)

One team racked up its 100th victory for its coach in five years, while another completed its season with 14 straight losses. (Martin's Ferry hit the "Century" mark for "Foxie Floyd" Baker, while McDonald, once one of the class B powers from Trumbull county, ended the campaign with a county tournament loss—its 14th of the campaign without a win.)

Buckskin, mentioned up there in the fourth paragraph, is the only Class B team in the Ross county tournament starting Thursday which has a coach. He is E. G. Shaw, who is in his 17th year there. Among his tournament foes will be Unioto, where the team is handled by two music teachers—Miss Helen Brown and Miss Elizabeth Umstew.

Among other oddities were: Friday night Warren defeated Niles, and Canton McKinley defeated Canton Timken. Each winner set a new school and city scoring record, and the score in each game was—80-28.

In the Central Ohio league, Newark has lost two games, both to Dover. Friday night Newark beat Chillicothe 55 to 28. Saturday night Chillicothe beat Dover 30-27 in an overtime, in what was probably the week's No. 1 upset.

While all that was going on, five teams were tumbled from the undefeated ranks, leaving only 23 of the state's 1152 quintets unsullied.

The newest Victims, with the length of their winning streaks and their conquerors: Class A, Berea, 9, (30, Rocky River 34); Class B, Ottoville, 14, (27, Delphos St. Johns 38); Enon, 12, (lost to Plattsburg); Sabina, 9 (31, Fairfield 35; and Buckskin, 7, (33, Circleville 34).

The undefeated contingent, with the number of wins:

Class A: North Canton 16; Martins Ferry 15, Defiance 14, Bexley and Greenfield 11, Cleveland South 9.

Class B: Plain City 20, Middle Point 16; Lorain Clearview, Twinsburg and Creston, 14; Pickaway township, Bloomingburg, West Liberty, Champion, Yellow Springs Bryan and Utica, 13; Webster township, 12; Dresden and New Albany 11, Arlington and Cygnet, 10; Newport, 8.

Savold Stops Lem Franklin

CHICAGO —(INS)— Lee Savold, Paterson, N. J., heavyweight, was back on the comeback trail again today after turning in one of the best fights of his career with his tenth round knockout victory over Lem Franklin of Chicago.

The former Des Moines, Ia., battler, got up off the floor after a count of six in the first round last night and despite a closed eye waged an uphill fight to pile up points and then win by a knockout.

Franklin, resorting to his favorite right hand punch, took the first two rounds by wide margins, and after an even third round, Savold became the aggressor the rest of the way.

A hard left jab to Franklin's chin in the tenth round put the Chicagoan down for the count and he had to be dragged to his corner.

The 8,548 fans who paid $24,000.32 were disappointed in the widely advertised bout between Hubert Hood of Chicago and Curtis Shepheard of Pittsburgh which officials declared "no contest" in the sixth round.

ROWE SOLD

BROOKLYN—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers today sold Schoolboy Rowe, veteran pitcher, and Catcher Dixie Howell to their Montreal farm club of the International league. Both were with the Royals last year on option. Rowe from mid-August to the end of the season and Howell the entire year.

Rolls Three Straight 202's

How's this for an unusual bowling series by a woman? Zelda Burkett of Madison, Wis., began by bowling 202. Her next game was 202. And the third game was 202! The series, 606, was Miss Burkett's best. She has been bowling eight years and has a 158 average. She is also one of the city's tennis stars.

Declares Dempsey-Louis Bout Would Be Terrific

(AP Features)

By JAMES J. JOHNSTON

Out of the west, riding the rods, came the first hobo to try for the world heavyweight championship. This skinny, half-starved-looking kid, weighing less than a light heavyweight, was Jack Dempsey, nicknamed the Manassa Mauler.

There's a boxing slogan that "a hungry fighter makes a champion," and Dempsey was a hungry fighter. Arriving by freight car, Dempsey and his manager took a furnished room and slept in a bed so narrow both had to wake up to turn over. They hardly had money for coffee and doughnuts.

Dempsey's First Fight.

One of Dempsey's first fights here was in a small club in the Bronx against Andre Anderson, a heavyweight I managed. Damon Runyan, a sportswriter, was nuts about heavyweights then, and he had heard of this kid from Utah. So he went with me to the fight.

Anderson towered over Dempsey but Jack ran toward him and started swinging and hooking from a crouched position, which made Andre look like the Tower of Pisa. That kept up for the entire distance.

My Andre was getting a bad licking and I said to him: "You're losing this fight. Why don't you step in and hit him with your right hand?" He replied: "Do you think I'm crazy? That guy is mad enough at me now and if I hit him, he'll be worse. I'm doing okay. He ain't hurting me and I'm not going to aggravate him anymore than he already is."

As we rode back to town after Dempsey's victory, Runyan said: "That Dempsey is the next champion." I replied: "You're out of your mind. He is too small and too light. Willard would annihilate him."

Runyan was convinced, though. "Dempsey will have gotten better and heavier, and his style will murder Willard like it did Anderson, who is as tall as Jess and not much behind him as a fighter." It turned out that Damon was right.

One Punch Knocker-outer.

Dempsey's style was of a whirlwind nature. He was not a one punch knocker-outer. Neither is Louis. Dempsey was always in a hurry, anxious to end his fights as quickly as possible. Unlike Louis, Dempsey crowded his foes, forcing them to lead to him. His crouching style no doubt would puzzle Louis.

As soon as Jack got close, he hit, and kept hitting, in and out of clinches. Louis would have to use his legs more or Dempsey would knock him out. I have seen crouchers weave up to Louis and for a second, he would look bewildered, but he would catch up with them later. However, none of his foes were Jack Dempseys. If he hesitated with Dempsey, the fight would be over, that's the reason for the Dempsey crouch.

If Louis could withstand the rushes and vicious punches of Dempsey for four rounds he would have a great chance of beating him. Joe had a lot of trouble keeping away from Max Schmeling the first time, and then again he was hit by a slovenly fighter like Tony Galento.

I think a Louis-Dempsey match would be one of the greatest boxing contests of all time. The terrific first few rounds would prevent a KO because both men can take it, and both would become tired at the same time and fight it out all the way with no decision, so close would it be.

Hoosiers Upset By Badgers

Illinois Takes Lead In Big Ten Hoop Race.

(By International News Service)

THE Western conference basketball race which gave every indication of winding up with the Indiana and Illinois quints undefeated, today saw the Illini at the top of the heap and the Hoosiers in second place through an upset 57 to 53 defeat at the hands of Wisconsin.

The Illinois defending champions moved into a clear lead last night at Minneapolis by swamping Minnesota, 67 to 43, while the Hoosiers were taking their beating from the Badgers at Madison.

This gave the Illini nine straight victories for a perfect percentage in conference play. Indiana, playing one more game than Illinois, has nine wins and one defeat. Each team has three more games to play, with Illinois now having a good edge to repeat for the title. They do not play each other.

Andy Phillip, conference high scorer, added to his total with 25 points for Illinois against the Gophers. The Gophers led 2 to 0 for a few moments at the start of the game

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON — What an ironic thing it was that the under-secretary of state, Sumner Welles, had to open United Nations month, in ceremonies arranged by OWI, with bitter recognition, only slightly sugared, that the United Nations still remained nothing but a noble pair of words.

Secretary Welles urgently pleads that the United Nations come together now and agree on their post-war program, and warns of the danger of waiting until the war is over. That is a confession, in other words, that we have accomplished nothing toward arranging for what is to come out of the war except to think up some fine phrases.

Clapper

I know it is not the fault of Mr. Welles. No one in the government has been more aware over many months of the necessity of moving to bring the United Nations into reality, to create some structure that will bind the Allies together after the cement of fighting for a common victory ceases to hold. It looks as if Mr. Welles is speaking now out of a deep anxiety because nothing is being done.

Germany is retreating faster than anybody thought possible 10 days ago. The end of Germany is not yet, but it is so plainly on the way that the prospective victors are beginning to lick their chops and to drool in anticipation of the spoils.

Those who know what they want are flexing the old boarding-house reach now, and you can see the breadhooks coming up on the table. Germany is going to try to divide the Allies, and people are busy here at home trying to do the same thing. It is a situation not to be covered up by speeches and "United Nations months."

We don't know what we want. Oh, yes, we want the four freedoms. But they are words in a vacuum. There is no American policy. President Roosevelt thinks about some of these things undoubtedly. People around the government in various offices think about them and draw word pictures on paper. But they are on their own.

There is no government policy regarding air rights, and Vice-president Wallace, Congresswoman Clare Luce, Pan-American Airways, and the spokesmen for foreign interests still mill around in the vacuum. Some of them know what they want. The government doesn't know what it wants. What is true about air rights is true of other matters.

If this world is going to hold together at all after victory, it will be held together by England, Russia and the United States working together, and bringing China into the group. These four—and largely the four men at the top of these four nations—are very likely to determine the direction that affairs take in the period immediately following victory.

Undersecretary Welles speaks as one of the few diplomatic technicians who can see beyond the text of a memorandum on his desk to the wide horizon that must be explored.

Mr. Welles says: "There could be no surer road to disaster, no surer means of bringing about unmitigated havoc in the future, than for the United Nations to enter the post-war period as rivals and opponents in their commercial and financial policies, rather than as collaborators in a common task of seeking and achieving international economic stability and general well-being.

"Together we can solve this problem; opposed to one another, no one of us will profit. All would share the consequences of a general ruin."

Nobody, not even Vice-president Wallace, is proposing that we sacrifice all rights and ask for none. The loose phrase "freedom of the air" is being distorted into a straw man proposal that we allow all foreign air traffic the run of our country without obtaining the reciprocal rights abroad.

That is as preposterous as the idea that we can have the right to fly our airplanes over all other countries without giving them reciprocal rights here. That is the kind of fantastic argument you get in such a vacuum as President Roosevelt has permitted to continue.

THOMAS URGES PROMPT HALT TO DRAFTING

Declares Entire Nation Will Face Regimentation Under 11,000,000 Army Plan.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Sen. Elmer Thomas (D) Okla., today joined the ranks of senators urging an immediate halt to drafting of men for the army as a group of farm state senators planned introduction of a bill prohibiting further induction of farm workers.

Thomas declared that the entire nation faces regimentation unless plans to build armed forces of 11,000,000 men this year are curtailed.

"Congress will have to step in and stop this program," he said. "We ought to stop drafting men and take stock of the situation. We are threatened with a food shortage of 10 to 15 per cent over last year when a 30 per cent increase is sought.

"The people have no idea of what they are up against. There will have to be complete regimentation and hardships if the program is carried out. The government will have to tell everyone just what to do."

Thomas asserted that it would take two years to transport the army overseas and that the army could not suffer by a slowing up of the program.

Meantime, it was learned, a number of farm state senators plan to join in proposing a bill to prohibit further drafting of farm workers and to compel the army to grant furloughs where necessary to step up food production.

The appropriations subcommittee had before it a report from the Brookings Institution indicating that support of armed forces of 12,000,000 would lead to vast changes in the nation.

Thomas said that Brookings experts hold that it will be necessary to increase working hours ultimately more than 48 hours a week, draw heavily upon women for labor and curtail existing non-defense activities, both governmental and private, by one-third.

Sen. Bankhead (D) Ala., chairman of the appropriations subcommittee, said "I see no way to avoid a breakdown if the army plan goes through. I don't see how we can support the forces without collapse of our national economy."

BLACK MARKETS IN FOOD DRAW BROWN'S IRE

OPA Chief Declares He Will Wipe Out 'Saboteurs,' Plans Tight Price Lid.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Price Administrator Prentiss M. Brown today declared his unequivocal determination to wipe out "black market" operations in meat, butter and other scarce commodities.

Brown said the "black market" probably has reached its peak, and the office of price administration is determined to use all means at its disposal to crush illegal sales "sabotaging" war time economy.

He plans to keep a tight lid on prices generally, to avoid a repetition of the inflationary tendencies of World war I. He admitted it probably will be necessary to extend rationing to all important scarce commodities, but believes that a healthy, adequate diet is possible and foresees no need for sweeping cuts in standards of living.

The new price administrator showed no signs of being worn down or harassed after a month of what is generally admitted to be one of Washington's toughest jobs. He carefully sidestepped committing himself on controversial issues which kept his predecessor, Leon Henderson, at loggerheads with congress and sections of the public.

"At present we are fighting the 'black market' in four principal ways," he said. "They are:

"1. Use of press, radio and other forms of public information to point out unsanitary conditions in the 'black market' slaughter pens.

"2. In the past five weeks we have instituted no less than 300 suits to enforce our slaughter and price regulations. Of these, 100 are criminal suits, and the number of criminal suits will be extended in the future.

"3. We hope to bring rationing of meat to consumers into effect in about six weeks. This really is our best weapon against the 'black market.'

"4. We are thinking seriously of placing ceilings on live cattle."

Brown said "black market" operators today frequently are compared with bootleggers of prohibition days.

Brown said he would keep a tough control over prices.

"Since the general maximum price regulation came into force last April the increase has been slightly less than one-half of one per cent per month," he said. "I don't want the general public to think we are going to be able to do better than that, but we are going to do our utmost to hold prices as close as possible to the Sept. 15, 1942 level."

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

WASHINGTON—The Dies committee has been given another extension and one true, but unacknowledged reason why the house did this was that most of the members realize that Martin Dies, clumsy though he certainly is, and nonjudicial and a collector of some spiteful gossip and irrelevant stuff along with his authentic information, has had to submit to a brutal program of abuse for more than four years from some of the most obnoxious personalities of the time, most of whom themselves delight to employ the smear as a political weapon.

Pegler

The real Communist, the furtive fellow-travelers and the pinks, the union racketeers and all that element who were known early in the New Deal as architects of the future, and the writers who serve the left-wing publications, have been on this man without let-up almost from the day he set to work to turn up enemies of the American form of government, in both enemy columns, the Nazi-Fascist and Communist.

For a brief time at the beginning, he had their support for he first investigated the Nazis of the bund and the few self-important Italian political padrones in this country who had accepted cheap and silly little badges from the Duce and were throwing their weight about the Italian settlements of New York, Providence and Philadelphia.

But, already, our government had set its face against the Nazi-Fascists in instinctive preparation for the inevitable war and the department of justice was on the job and the hunt for such vermin was joyously taken up by some of our best reporters. The Bolos in the government joined in, too, for they of course hated the Nazi-Fascist and with all this talent engaged and backed by a firm government policy, the Hitlerites were efficiently hounded into prison or out of the country or silenced.

This is why there has been little for Martin Dies to do in that field and why he dealt more and more and now deals almost exclusively with Communists and those who run with them.

This administration has always been more tolerant of Communists than of Nazi-Fascists. Personages high in the administration who have damned Lindbergh as a Naziphile if not an outright Nazi, have not hesitated to address the lawyers' guild and the newspaper guilt although any person who has done the same at a meeting of any group dominated by agents of the Nazi bund would have been called a traitor and recorded on the suspect list of the FBI with good reason.

The reason for the sustained abuse of Martin Dies has not been that he neglected to conduct dignified hearings and released suspect lists, and charges based on old clippings and declarations of attitude by individuals of doubtful loyalty, nor is the smear resented on ethical grounds, as such.

Other congressional bodies have similarly taken advantages of persons who were not in a position to do themselves justice and the smear was the very method of the first New Deal campaign against Herbert Hoover.

Moreover, only a few weeks ago, President Roosevelt, himself, took a shocking advantage of his position to present an iron cross to a thoroughly loyal American newspaper writer at a time when the journalist was about to go to trial with a libel action against a New Deal paper which had questioned his Americanism.

The hatred of Dies and the long campaign against him are the defense of the Communists and the pro-Communists in and out of the government who know, as congress does that, although he may have been wrong in some individual cases, he has been right most of the time. This is not a Communist nor a pro-Communist congress. It has less tolerance for Communism and American Communists and those who sympathize and cooperate with them than any other congress since the New Deal began and it is far to the right of the administration. The other congressmen know what Dies has been through and the vote to continue his committee, which is practically a one-man show now, is both a vote of sympathy for him and an expression of dissent from the administration's tolerance of anti-American sentiment ranging in degree from the fierce hostility of the avowed party member to the poisonous despair of those who think the American way is outmoded and never was much good.

Now another committee, which is being called a congressional jury is to be named to sift the charges against individuals accused by Dies and conclude with finality whether they should be vindicated or kicked out of their jobs. This is a new thing in congress and the Communists and the fellow-travelers will be saying it was to discredit him and protect the innocent. Some of the members may have had this in mind but on the other hand, this will be the first time Dies has had a court in which to prove up and get results. Always up to now his charges have been dismissed as smear.

LAUSCHE FIRES 113 STRIKERS

Declares Waterworks Employes 'Stabbed' Administration.

CLEVELAND — (INS) — While steps were taken today to protect the city in case of an emergency, a strike of 113 city waterworks employes at the Woodland yards continued and Mayor Frank J. Lausche announced that the men had been discharged.

The men were fired when they refused to return to work on orders of the mayor, who said they had "stabbed the administration." The men were water meter and water main repairers and foremen.

They are members of the AFL-Plumbers union and were demanding overtime pay. Utilities Director Emil J. Crown said precautions had been taken to guard against any emergency except a serious break and suburban crews were standing by.

SCHOOL BOARD HIRES TEACHERS

Seven Employed, Resignations of Three Others Accepted; One Granted Leave.

Seven teachers and another school employe were hired last night by the Mansfield board of education which accepted the resignations of three more teachers. One leave-of-absence was granted.

Employed to fill vacancies in the staff were Mrs. C. C. Stout, substitute teacher at Senior high school; Mrs. Marie Heasley, Senior high school; Mary Bell, Johnny Appleseed junior high school; Mrs. Luciana Hutzelman, John Simpson junior high school; Paul Miller, vocational department at Senior high school; W. B. Blank, metal shop instructor at John Simpson junior high school, and C. A. McClure, Senior high school.

McClure, however, will teach only until Wednesday since he is scheduled for induction into the armed forces Thursday, Supt. W. L. Miller said.

Resignations accepted were those of John Correll, Johnny Appleseed teacher, who has taken a job with the War Labor board in Washington; Mrs. Correll, who has been a permanent substitute teacher, and Kenneth Lea, John Simpson junior high school instructor. Lea will go to a war job in Columbus.

Miss Fae Sotherland, John Simpson instructor, was granted an indefinite leave of absence to accompany her father, R. H. Sotherland, to Louisiana on a business trip.

The board accepted the resignation of Mrs. Bessie Foote, matron at the John Simpson building, and employed Russell Ruley as a laborer at the same school.

She is survived by three sons, Charles W., north of Crestline, and Sherman E., and Raymond, both of Crestline; one brother, Henry Mathias, and one sister, Mrs. George Weber, both of Crestline; two grandchildren, and one great grandchild.

Mrs. Swarer was a member of the Trinity Lutheran church. Funeral services are incomplete.

Somewhere in Mansfield there is a good candidate for the title of "meanest man" or maybe it is a woman. A comic valentine "with three cents postage due" arrived at the county jail this morning for an inmate. Of course, the contents of the air mail envelope were not known when the postman collected the three cents! Worse yet, the comic showed a man behind bars with a verse relative to the charge on which the prisoner was convicted.

Fred H. Cahall (Farm Tools Inc.) is apt to take a short trip most anytime, it seems. In helping his visiting brother and sister-in-law onto a train the other noon, Cahall forgot that Pullman porters do not call out "all ashore that's going ashore" as they do on departing ships. Consequently he had a very red face and considerable trouble in getting back from Crestline, the first stop.

Patients in the men's ward at General hospital do not have to attend church on Sunday mornings, or even listen to the radio, for their morning devotions since they have a minister in their midst. He is Rev. William Bird, colored, who has conducted services at 5 a. m., the past two Sunday mornings at the request of fellow patients. He will be in the ward for at least one more Sunday, hospital attaches said. The early hour was selected since it follows the arousing hour and precedes breakfast time when all are awake and the corridors are quiet.

WELCOME PROBE AT PLANE PLANT

Curtiss-Wright Officials Point To Deliveries as Senator Plans 'Visit.'

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — Officials of the Columbus plant of the Curtiss-Wright Aircraft corporation, today asserted they "would welcome" the investigating visit of Sen. Harry S. Truman, Missouri Democrat, who is chairman of the senate war investigating committee.

Truman announced in Washington that he would be in Columbus Thursday for a full investigation of plane production at the plant. He ordered a similar investigation of plane construction at the Ford Willow Run plant at Detroit on Friday.

After the tours of investigation, Truman said there will be hearings at Washington "at which we will get all the facts."

J. P. Davey, general manager of the Curtiss-Wright plant, asserted that deliveries of one type of naval aircraft manufactured there "are up to schedule" and that production of the other type made there is nearing a "satisfactory" figure.

In Washington, Truman asserted that "there has been so little production at the plant as to amount to virtually none."

It was understood that besides Senator Truman, the investigating party would include Senators Kilgore, West Virginia Democrat; Burton, Ohio Republican; Ball, Minnesota Republican, and Ferguson, Michigan Republican.

Call Windshield License Sticker Political Placard

COLUMBUS—(AP)— Democrats in the Ohio house of representatives contended today that the little windshield sticker, which Ohio motorists will carry in lieu of a 1943 license plate, would be a "political placard."

The sticker will bear the name of Gov. John W. Bricker plus that of the highway director and registrar of motor vehicles.

Rep. A. Lee Fair (D-Holmes) led a fight against the sticker last night as the house re-attached an emergency clause to a bill authorizing issuance of the insignia in place of new metal plates.

The clause was knocked off last Thursday when the house objected to rushing action on the legislation. Without it the stickers would not be made available until mid-May. They are needed by April 1.

The emergency rider was approved 116 to 7, as the Republican majority mustered its full strength. Last week the emergency received only 87 votes, whereas 91 were needed.

The house amended the bill to provide that the sticker system shall be effective for 1943, 1944 and 1945. The measure now returns to the senate for concurrence in the amendment.

All the dead and injured were taken from second floor bedrooms of the 2½-story building where they were trapped.

How Do You Get Those Items?

The girl from Hollywood was wearing an emerald green hat and emerald green gloves that she kept on while she held the menu. She scanned the print soberly, trying to pretend that she didn't know she was sitting at the best table in 21 and half the people in the room were craning to look at her. "I heard the swellest story the other day," she said as she returned the stiff card to the waiter, "about Joan Crawford."

She fished a dazzling little gold cigaret case out of her purse and laid it on the tablecloth. "She's so in love with this new husband of hers—honestly, it's wonderful. It's like something in a book. Why, I heard that she called the woman who was writing her biography for a magazine and asked her would she please not mention anything about her having been married to Douglas Fairbanks, jr. and Franchot Tone, because those weren't true marriages. She said this marriage to Phil Terry is her first true marriage."

Kilgallen

The girl in the emerald green hat touched a cigaret to her beautiful curved lips. "I heard that he comes on the set every day when she's working and stands behind the camera watching her—you know, inspiring her. Just before every scene, when the lights go on and the cameras are ready to roll he looks at her and lifts his hand and says 'Forever!' And she looks at him and says 'Forever!' And then they shoot the scene."

The girl from Hollywood began drawing off her gloves, very slowly.

"Imagine that," she said. "Isn't that sweet?"

A chill wind was blowing through Shubert Alley and the theatrical gent had stepped out between acts without his overcoat, but he stood there anyway.

"It was kind of funny at that," he said. "You see, when that singer left the show to take over a part in another show, the producer wasn't too pleased. You know, it isn't always the way you columnists make it seem. Producers aren't always overjoyed when kids in their shows go on to bigger and better things.

"He couldn't have been overjoyed because he called up Equity and asked wasn't there some kind of rule that if a performer left a show while it was still running, the performer had to pay for any expenses incurred in altering the costumes for her successor. Or buying new shoes, or anything like that. And Equity said there certainly was."

The theatrical gent, a tall lean fellow, grinned widely.

"So he was all set to take a hunk out of her last pay check. But then Equity called back and said the rest of that rule was that if a performer did pay for new costumes or shoes, she's got to keep the old ones. So far as I know, she got her paycheck intact."

Intermission was over and the tall gent began to edge back toward the theater doors. "But that just illustrates that you columnists are too sentimental. You always make it sound like every time a young performer gets a break the producer who discovered her throws a big party and gives her a going-away present in platinum, suitably engraved. Well, I've been around Broadway 25 years and I've never seen that happen. Usually they just get sore."

People always ask you where you get those items. It's easy. You just listen to people.

Gardening for Victory

Chicago Shows City Farmers Way

By ROBERT GEIGER
(AP Feature Writer)

The city slicker, so the experts said in the spring of 1942, wasn't capable of raising a victory garden. Chicago didn't take this advice seriously and so the city slickers produced more than 20,000 tons of food last fall in their backyards and vacant lots.

"The Victory Garden campaign in Chicago was so successful in 1942 and the need for fresh foods for city folks will be so much more acute in 1943 that our program for the coming season will be repeated and intensified," says the man behind the Chicago plan, George T. Donoghue, director of Victory Gardens for the Chicago metropolitan area of the office of civilian defense.

Second In a Series

"Not only that but the Chicago plan is being made available to every other American city this spring.

"In Chicago the public schools, the comercial garden interests and the civilian defense organization are combining with the garden enthusiasts in a campaign that we know will result in more than 100,000 Victory gardens in Chicago this coming summer."

That is approximately four times the number of city and suburban gardens registered with the city's Victory garden department last year. There were hundreds of unregistered ones.

Here's how Chicago did it:

First, Donoghue, an executive of the Chicago park district, was appointed director.

He called a conference of garden club leaders, civic workers and professional horticulturists to work out the program.

Volunteer lecturers in February began discussing gardening plans at neighborhood and suburban meetings.

In every civilian defense community, of which there are 108, a Victory garden chairman was appointed. They distributed general information, literature and garden plants.

EVERYBODY'S WORKING—Children as well as grown-ups work in this typical community Victory garden, of which there were more than 500 in Chicago last year.

A large farm machinery company was persuaded to turn over to the Victory garden department three tractor plows. The park district provided the operators, gasoline and supplies.

Each Victory garden community chairman was told to find suitable vacant lots; obtain permission of owners for plowing and recruit nearby families willing to cultivate about 1,000 square feet each.

To be qualified for plowing, a community garden had to be at least 75 feet wide, 100 feet long and available to at least four families.

In this manner 547 neighborhood cooperative garden plots were established. Some adjoined skyscrapers, others were in factory districts.

Plowing was not permitted until an experienced horticulturist of the Chicago park district had passed upon the location to be sure it had sunlight and fertility.

Your Federal Income Tax

No. 38: GAINS AND LOSES

Income is frequently affected by transactions in property held for profit or investment, or used in the taxpayer's business, but not a part of the stock in trade. Such transactions may occur in real estate, or other tangible property, such as store fixtures or plant machinery and equipment, or such personal possessions as car or household goods. Such transactions are reportable either in Schedule F or Schedule G of the return Form 1040, and, depending upon the character, are taken partly or wholly into the income account on the face of the return (item 8).

The law requires gains or losses to be reported according to the nature of the transaction, and two separate entries are provided in item 8 for this purpose: (a) net gain (or loss) from sale or exchange of capital assets, (b) net gain (or loss) from sale or exchange of property other than capital assets.

A distinction is made between capital assets and "other than capital assets." The latter includes primarily property subject to the allowance for depreciation and land used in the trade or business and held for more than six months where losses from sale or involuntary conversion of such property exceeds the gain. If gains from the sale or involuntary conversion of property subject to the allowance for depreciation and land used in the trade or business, and held for more than six months, exceed the losses, the transactions are treated in the same manner as a sale of capital assets.

On property classified as "other than capital assets" the full amount of the gain (or loss) from sale or exchange is taken into the income account in item 8 (b) of the return Form 1040, and an explanation of the transaction is shown in Schedule G.

In transactions in capital assets, such as nondepreciable property, and securities, the amount of gain or loss taken into the income account, in item 8 (a), is subject to certain limitations. For such property held for not more than six months, the entire amount of the net gain or loss is considered in arriving at the net amount to be shown, while for property held more than six months, one-half of the net gain or loss is considered. The combined net gain is entered in item 8 (a) of the return. If, however, the result is a net loss, then the amount which may be entered is limited to $1,000 or to the amount of the taxpayer's net income from other sources, whichever is the smaller. In arriving at the net figure, also, losses of this character for a preceding year may be used as an offset, within certain limitations, and the net results of such transactions on partnership or common trust fund account must be included.

It should be noted that in the case of sale or exchange of property, such as the taxpayer's residence, automobile, house furnishings, or jewelry, gains must be taken into income but losses are not allowed to be so taken. Such property, not being depreciable, would classify as capital assets, and the treatment of gains would be governed as stated above.

A few thoughts about rationing

Mileage rationing is no fun for anybody—least of all for the O.P.A., which has charge of it, and for the service station operator, who has to make it work.

But it's a job that must be done so that we'll have vitally important rubber to keep our war machine and our cars and trucks running.

So far as we can observe (and you get to know people pretty well at a service station) most people are taking mileage rationing in the right spirit—realizing that it's aimed at helping America fight a winning war, and at helping them keep the use of their cars for essential driving.

Of course, occasionally there's a bit of grumbling about this or that regulation. Mr. Smith may not like the idea of the sticker on his windshield . . . or Mrs. Brown can't see what difference it makes whether she tears out the coupons or the service station attendant does it.

Well, that's to be expected of any plan that affects the daily life of so many people. The important thing to remember is that the regulations were made to accomplish a certain purpose—and if that purpose is achieved the annoyances will seem pretty trifling to all of us.

Your service station man wants to help you and our government make mileage rationing work as smoothly and efficiently as possible. Along with keeping your car fit, it's one of his war jobs. And the only way he can do that job well is by observing the law right to the letter—even though it takes extra work, extra time, extra patience.

Here are 7 things the rationing regulations require your gasoline dealer to do:

1. Procure ration book with attached coupons
2. Check ration sticker with book
3. Check auto license number with book
4. Check entry of license number on back of coupons
5. Check valid dates on ration book
6. Detach coupons from book himself
7. Return book to owner . . .

—then deliver gasoline

HERE'S THAT DATE AGAIN!

Don't forget—it's the last day for Official Tire Inspection on all "B" and "C" cars

February 28 is the new deadline set by O.P.A. for the first Official Tire Inspection on all "B" and "C" cars. Uncle Sam says we must all help save rubber by getting these inspections when due. Otherwise, we may be denied gasoline and tires. There's not much time left—and Official Stations will probably be jammed around the end of the month. Why not have your tires inspected today or tomorrow?

(You'll find SOHIO Dealers and Stations so handy for Official Tire Inspection and all your other tire needs! Save time, trouble and gasoline by stopping at SOHIO.)

Rostov Important, But Not Conclusive

ROSTOV, again in the hands of the Russians, has not only been a key to Axis-Soviet battles in Russia but it is also something of a symbol of strength for the opposing sides.

It was captured by the Nazis in their first invasion sweep; then retaken by the Russians in 1941; lost a second time in 1942, and now back once more to its own people.

This time the prospects of holding Rostov are much brighter than when Hitler's hordes took the city last year and the impression is gaining that the strength of Russian armies, supplemented by mobile equipment and food and clothing supplies from Great Britain and the United States, will be sufficient to continue offensives that will eventually drive the invaders out of what is still a vast expanse of occupied territory.

A comment by Major Paul C. Raborg, military analyst, following the capture of Rostov, merits thought. He says: "Nazi Germany had only one hope of success in their invasion of Russia and that was during the summer of 1941—the year of their original attack. All German successes in this war have been more because of lack of proper defense than to efficiency of attack. In other words, in all their victories they have rapidly overrun their victim countries because those countries had no defense. If Hitler had been able to do this with Russia the story would have been different. But he could not, and his chance of conquering the Soviet Union is now ended forever."

Russian successes, however, should not be confused with situations on other war fronts, nor should amazing achievements of the winter campaign be construed as indication that Nazi forces will not attempt a final desperate spring offensive before acknowledging defeat.

Heavier Casualties To Be Expected

WARNING by Secretary of War Stimson that heavier American casualties are to be expected in North Africa was followed closely by news of a 20-mile break-through by Axis forces pitted against American fighters in the Faid area.

Heretofore the "casualties," which include killed, wounded and captured, have been associated largely with Axis, or Russian and Chinese losses, but as the war advances to a decisive stage of the Battle of Africa and to actual invasion of Europe, it cannot be avoided that the toll of Americans will become heavier and that more and more communities and homes will be darkened by the death of loved ones.

Mansfield and Richland county have already experienced the sorrow of hearing that some of our own young men have been killed in action and that others are missing or held prisoner, but it is apparent that the real test of fortitude is still to come. This is further emphasized by the announcement of Major General Hershey, director of selective service, that 12,000 men a day must be inducted into the armed services this year in order to reach the goal of 11,200,000 by the end of the year.

An association of ideas leads to belief that when the real cost of war, in terms of American lives, is more fully realized by the people of this country there will be less tolerance of administrative ineptitude and inefficiency in high places, as well as of those elements which are seeking and gaining special benefits because of the war.

However far Germany, Italy and Japan may go in the glorification of death in battle, Americans place high value on human life and are not inclined to let anything stand in the way of earliest possible victorious ending of the war.

Example of Minority Pressure

ACTION by the state legislature on the time-change proposal provides an excellent example of how politicians respond to minority pressure when nothing is heard from the lethargic majority.

Disregarding the merits of the case for the moment, it has become obvious that governor and legislators acted solely in response to demands of farm groups in approving the proposed change from Eastern to Central time.

Opposition was unorganized during the weeks that the legislature was wasting valuable time on this measure and it was not until after the bill had been passed that people of the state awakened to realization of the confusion that would result from such a change.

More important than this single episode is the fact that organized minorities are in position to wield greater influence in legislation than an unorganized majority—which possibly explains why the fine theories of democracy become so grotesque under political manipulation.

Baseball's 'Grand Old Man'

CONNIE MACK is eighty years old, and "the grand old man of baseball" seems likely to go on forever. Anyone who has had to watch the Philadelphia Athletics for the last ten years must be proof against the ordinary hazards of life. What buoys him up as he looks at his floundering athletes of today is the recollection of his triumphs of the past, and the hope of others yet to come.

Once before he went through a long series of reverses. After breaking up the famous team of 1910-14 he had to manage tail-enders for fifteen years before the slow process of building up a pennant contender produced results. The end justified the wait. Teams that included such players as Simmons, Cochrane, Foxx, Grove and Earnshaw need not take off their hats to any nine anywhere.

From the crest of the wave he descended into the trough, and has been there for ten long years. But Connie has faith. He feels sure that, given time, he will some day have a real ball team again.

Manpower shortage is reported as so acute in some cities that Turkish bath establishments are becoming interested in rubber substitutes.

Elmer Davis admits that he doesn't know when the war will end—odd sort of person, isn't he?

UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER IN TWO FORMS

Nazi Collapse By Year-End Seen

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Hopes are rising higher and higher in Washington that a collapse of Germany may come sooner than anyone had hoped. Even the most pessimistic are now conceding that unless there is some totally unexpected change in the situation Germany will collapse by December. The notion about December is that German morale would be at its lowest just as another long hard winter faces the German people, with victory in Russia still unwon.

It is characteristic of the Germans that they are perfectly willing to fight and die for the Fatherland so long as they feel that they are winning. Unlike the Japanese, who, according to people who have studied them would fight just as viciously if they were losing, the German has no stomach for what he regards as a needless sacrifice.

AN OFFICIAL who knows both the Germans and the Japanese well used an illustration in this connection. He said that if the Southern Confederacy had been composed entirely of Germans, during the Civil war, the Confederacy would have collapsed much sooner than it did. This expert figured that it would have been about the time of the Battle of the Wilderness.

On the other hand, he insisted, if the Confederacy had been composed entirely of Japanese, Lee would not have surrendered at Appomattox. The war would have dragged on for whatever time it took virtually to exterminate the Confederate army.

Actually the last war ended long before the German army had reached anything like the state of exhaustion and defeat which Lee's army had reached by the time of the Battle of the Wilderness, when Grant was pressing toward Richmond.

UP TO the moment when this is written the Russian successes against the Germans have been prodigiously greater than had been hoped. For example there was no hope in the reports made to this government a month ago that the Russians would gain back anything like as much this winter as they lost last summer.

It is true that there is still very little hope of the Russians retaking Savastopol, which they lost last summer, but it has become a possibility. As pointed out in these dispatches some weeks ago Savastopol is still a good thing to watch as one studies the war maps.

But on the northern front the breaking of the Nazi ring around Leningrad is of tremendous importance. This is not looking at the whole thing from the standpoint of a strategist. It is viewing it with regard to the effect of the events on the morale of the German people.

From a strictly military viewpoint the losses which have been inflicted on the Germans have been terrific, and the capture of war supplies enormous, yet it must be remembered, if considered from a military standpoint, rather than one of morale, that the Russians still believe the Nazis have enough strength to make a very strong offensive this spring. And spring is not far off.

THIS is where the comparison to our own Civil war, and to the collapse of German morale in the first World war is important. The Germans might be able to make another vigorous offensive, but if the people meantime had lost heart that would not help very much. It did not in the last war.

Even the pessimists are figuring that the German collapse will come by December at the latest. But this does not mean that the war will be over. Japan will go on fighting, unless every authority on the Japanese is wrong, until there is no ability longer to resist.

Dave Boone Says:

THE MARINES of Guadalcanal—the boys who put up the longest battle in our history without relief—are back on U. S. shores. Rest is their number one need, but if they could only be paraded in a couple of key cities it would make a rip-snorting celebration that would do more for the American spirit than most of those radio propaganda scripts that are being pumped over the air day and night.

* * *

Few episodes in American history have been as heroic as the performance of these marines in the rotten jungles against heavy odds for five months, and I think the public is aching to see these boys face to face.

If they could be scattered in groups about the big cities for civic welcomes and testimonial parades it would be a tremendous morale builder.

* * *

And give a rest to a lot of those radio script boys who, from the sound of some of their over-written war morale scripts, sure need it. And the public would like to switch to something real, too, I think.

Job For Seven States.

Tennessee has abolished its poll tax. Seven states — Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, Texas, Virginia—still will not permit their citizens to vote unless they pay poll taxes. They should follow Tennessee's example.

Members of congress from these southern states are bitterly opposed to federal legislation to wipe out poll taxes. Their contention that the federal government has no right to dictate voting qualifications to the sovereign states has some merit. But poll taxes have no merit. They are a device to disfranchise the poor.

If these southern states do not want national legislation to dictate the qualifications for their voters they should get rid of their anachronistic poll taxes by state legislation.—Akron Beacon Journal.

Health And Diet

Nutritional Masterpiece

—By DR. CLENDENING

I SUPPOSE," said my old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs, while we were waiting in line for our C cards, "that as a nutritionist you sometimes wonder which of the Great Brains is doing what about the nutrition of the American people."

"Oh," I said, "I don't know. I don't pay so very much attention. Why?"

Hatch a Masterpiece.

"Let me tell you," said Dr. Adrian Gibbs confidentially, "the ruling members of the Deciding Board, consisting of Simple Simon, Mortimer Snerd, Charlie McCarthy and Old Father William, got together the other day and they hatched a masterpiece. They decided that the farmers of this country were not going to be allowed to grow the following articles: cucumbers, asparagus, cauliflower, celery, mushrooms, cantaloupe and watermelon.

"If a farmer, relying on the Bill of Rights, so much as raises his little finger or the head of a stalk of asparagus, his gasoline rationing card for carrying his produce to market is going to be cut off.

Cutting Out Mushrooms.

"It was probably Mortimer Snerd who decided not to have mushrooms. Since we are going to have meatless days, and mushrooms are the one vegetable that most resemble meat and also one of the easiest to cultivate, Mortimer would naturally take a pick on mushrooms.

"I pick Charlie for the one who decided to cut down on cantaloupe. Charlie has probably decided that he is too popular in Colorado. Here a crop of about $3,000,000 worth of cantaloupes is grown each year and cutting that off will fix it so the farmers will be in a splendid condition to buy war bonds and also it will deprive the people of the United States of a good deal of vitamins A, B, and C, which they will now have to get at the drug stores.

"Old Father William, standing on his head, and Simple Simon, looking at the stars, decided against cauliflower, cucumbers and celery because they were more or less tough.

"Aside from the essential ash, mineral, calcium and iron contained in all the articles prohibited by this board of geniuses, they all contain roughage. Granted that they are bulky to transport, but the bulkiness is the essential and valuable part of them as food stuffs.

"If the edict I mention goes into effect, it will take five million times the amount of Cascara Sagrada that is now being cultivated in California to counteract the effect of the dietary deficiencies of the American people."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Encouraging Report By President; Senators See Controversial Film

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — The president's report to congressional leaders after his return from Casablanca was a sober, serious diagnosis of the war, leavened with occasional Roosevelt ian humor.

Among other things he spoke at length about his visit to Liberia and the president of Liberia, Edwin Barclay.

"I was very much impressed with him," said the president, adding that he was a man with about seven-eighths Negro blood.

Then with a grin in the direction toward his very good friend Senator Alben Barkley of Kentucky, he added:

"By the way, Alben, this Barclay also has a Kentucky strain. His ancestors came from Kentucky. They were slaves."

The president went on to tell about Liberia's election laws by which only those Liberians whose ancestors were American slaves are permitted to vote.

In his report on the war fronts, Roosevelt's soberest remarks were addressed to the submarine problem. The details of what he said cannot be revealed, except that scientists from all over the United States had been called in to try to lick the submarine.

The president made no effort to minimize the pessimitsic statements previously made by some of his naval men, and obviously agreed with them about the seriousness of the U-boat menace. The one hopeful situation was the Pacific, where we were losing much less shipping to Jap subs.

Giraud Vs. De Gaulle.

ONE POINT which left a deep impression on his congressional leaders was the difficulty the president and Churchill had in getting Gen. De Gaulle and Gen. Giraud together. After about six days of effort they were finally able to get them to shake hands and pose for the photograhers.

While the president was optimistic regarding the military situation in North Africa, he went into detail regarding the difficulty of getting heavy tanks through the mud until the terrain had dried. While the rains usually stop in March or April, they have been known to continue until June.

The president also explained that Churchill was handling all the negotiations with Turkey because the British were closer to the Turkish picture than the United States.

"In the same way," the president explained, "all negotiations with China are being carried on by the United States."

Scourge of War.

THE PRESIDENT also went into considerable detail regarding the morale of American troops, which he observed to be excellent in the North African war zone. However, he said he was "worried" over the manner in which our troops were exposed to undraped native women in the various parts of Africa, especially Liberia.

He praised the efficiency of the Medical Corps in dealing with venereal disease, but expressed concern over its prevalence and said it might be necessary to limit the liberty of overseas troops for the sake of their health. This same problem, he reported, also existed among U. S. troops in South America.

Questioned by congressional leaders on the internal situation in Italy and Germany, the president replied that he had been unable to get any definite information.

Inside Germany.

"WE KNOW that Italy already has been torn by serious internal disorders brought on by distrust of Mussolini's leadership," the president said. He added that although he could give no accurate report on the condition in Germany, his personal belief was that Germany would suffer a repetition of what happened in the last war. When German morale does collapse, he said, the whole thing will collapse quickly.

The president also touched briefly upon possible strategy for a new attack against Hitler which had been discussed with Churchill, and which obviously remains a military secret.

On the whole he gave a realistic but encouraging report on the Atlantic-African war picture.

Should We Hate Axis?

THE United States senate goes to the movies today to see a picture which Senator Rufus Holman of Oregon thinks is propaganda for re-election of Roosevelt.

But Rufus, as frequently happens with him, missed the real issue. The controversy involved in "Prelude to War," is not that of re-electing FDR, but whether or not the picture should be released to the public. Incidentally, one of Roosevelt's secretaries and best friends, Lowell Mellett, doesn't want it released. The film was prepared by the war department's special services division (formerly the morale division) to give soldiers some idea of what they are fighting for. It does this magnificently. It reviews the Jap invasion of Manchuria, the Italian invasion of Ethiopia, the rise of Nazism in Germany.

"You go away from the picture with a burning hate of the enemy.

Mellett, who co-ordinates all government films, is dead set against giving the public a look at "Prelude to War." Apparently he doesn't want the public to hate too violently.

ERNIE PYLE

The Roving Reporter

AT THE FRONT IN TUNISIA — (By Wireless) — A big military convoy moving at night across the mountains and deserts of Tunisia is something that nobody who has been in one can ever forget.

Recently I have been living with a front-line outfit. Late one afternoon it received sudden orders to move that night, bag and baggege. It had to pull out of its battle positions, time the departures of its various units to fit into the flow of traffic at the first control point on the highway, and then drive all night and go into action on another front.

All the big convoys in the war area move at night. German planes would spot a daytime convoy and play havoc with it.

It is extremely difficult and dangerous, this moving at night in total blackness over strange and rough roads. But it has to be done.

Our convoy was an immense one. There were hundreds of vehicles and thousands of men. It took seven and a half hours to pass one point.

The convoy started moving at 5:30 in the evening, just before dusk. The last vehicle didn't clear till 1 o'clock the next morning.

I RODE in a jeep with Capt. Pat Riddleberger, of Woodstock, Va., and Pvt. John Coughlin, Manchester, N. H. Ahead of us was a small covered truck which belonged to Riddleberger's tank-destroyer section. We were a little two-vehicle convoy within ourselves.

We were to fall in near the tail end, so we had half the night to kill before starting. We stood around the truck, parked in a barn-lot, for an hour or two, just talking in the dark. Then we went into the kitchen of the farmhouse which had been used as a command post and which was empty now.

There was an electric light, and we built a fire in the kitchen fireplace out of boxes. But the chimney wouldn't draw, and we almost choked from the smoke.

Some officers had left a stack of copies of the New York Times for October and November lying on the floor, so we read those for an hour or so. We looked at the book sections and the movie ads. None of us had ever heard of the new books or the current movies. It made us feel keenly how long we had been away and how cut off we were from home.

We finished the papers and there were still three hours to kill, so we got blankets out of the truck and lay down on the concrete floor. We were sleeping soundly when Captain Riddleberger awakened us at 1 a. m. and said we were off.

The moon was just coming out. The sky was crystal clear, and the night bitter cold. The jeep's top was down.

We all put on all the clothes we had. In addition to my usual polar-bear wardrobe, which includes heavy underwear and two sweaters, I wore that night a pair of coveralls, a heavy combat suit that a tank man lent me, a pair of overshoes, two caps—one on top of the other—and over them a pair of goggles. And all three of us in the jeep wrapped up in blankets.

In spite of all that, we almost froze before the night was over.

WE MOVED out of the barnlot, and half a mile away we swung onto the main road, at the direction of motorcyclists who stood there guiding the traffic.

Gradually our eyes grew accustomed to the half-darkness, and it wasn't hard to follow the road. We had orders to drive in very close formation, so we kept within 50 feet of each other.

After a few miles we had to cross over a mountain range. There were steep grades and switchback turns, and some of the trucks had to back and fill to make the sharper turns.

There was considerable delay on the mountain. We had long waits while traffic jams ahead were cleared. We would shut off our motors and the night would be deathly silent except for a subdued undertone of grinding motors far ahead.

Finally the road straightened out on a high plateau. There we met a big contingent of French troops moving silently toward the front we had just vacated.

I couldn't help feeling the immensity of the catastrophe that has put men all over the world, millions of us, to moving in machine like precision throughout long foreign nights—men who should be comfortably asleep in their own warm beds at home.

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Future Farming

I TALKED with a farmer as he loaded manure onto his spreader. He was perspiring, and spat on his hands before he took a firm grip on the handle of the fork to begin a new load.

"A lot of things on a farm are goin' to change after this war," he said. "And the changes'll be all to the good!"

"Your tractor'll be an oddity," I suggested.

"I was readin' where they're goin' to make 'em with smaller engines—little enough a man can carry the engine in his arms—and put the power on the rear. The engine won't have any pistons, because the up and down motion is not efficient. It'll be rotary, like a fan, and impelled by gases of higher temperatures, and with a continuous forward motion.

"This idea that the engine must be out in front, is a relic of horse and buggy days. The new ones will put the driver out in front, where he can get an unobstructed view, and if he wants, he can have an air conditioned cab where he can operate with clean hands and (I hope) a pure heart. The engine 'll be set on at the back.

"He can have a radio to entertain him while he works, with music, speeches from Washington, the latest markets and news of the world policing system. With a little sending set, he can talk to his wife—tell her when he'll be ready for supper, or that a hawk had just dived into the lot where the pullets are fed.

"Tires'll be made of farm grown products, of synthetic rubber without any inner tube. Heat nor oil won't harm 'em and punctures'll be self sealing.

"Big barns won't be necessary. Forage crops will all be cut green, chopped and put into silos. Farmers'll co-operate and one simple line of farm machinery will serve a small community, for each crop can be planted or harvested in a matter of hours.

"Surplus airplanes, after the war, will come in handy for dusting or gassing pests like corn borer, canker worm, leaf hoppers, aphids, potato bugs, or even blights might be got rid of with poison gas, township by township, county by county.

"I'll bet the next five years will show more farm progress than has happened in the last thirty. Agriculture will really become a big business—why from the fields and woods they're goin' to be able to make plastics for manufacturing industries, food and clothes for all the people, and fuel for turning the machinery."

"I judge you aren't planning to leave your farm," I said.

"Nope—" he grinned. "I mighta a few years back, but now I'm goin' to stick a while longer and see what happens."
